Calls for greater flexibility after a lean State Budget

After today's release of the State Budget, Queensland Manager for National Disability Services, Valmae Rose said greater flexibility was needed for community-managed disability services.

"This is the lean State Budget we expected.

"We also expect, that with an ageing and increasing population, demand for disability services will continue to rise.

"One way or another, more disability services are needed in Queensland.

"We need government to work with us on greater flexibility for disability service provision.

"The fact is, every dollar a service is made to spend on administration is a dollar that isn't spent on people with disabilities," Ms Rose said.
